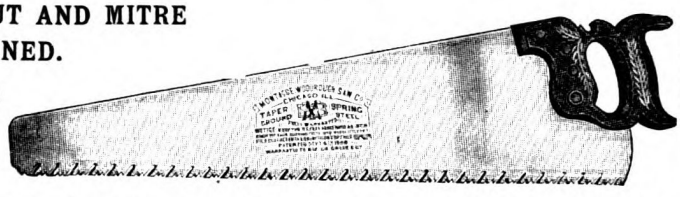
A NEW HAND SAW.

The Famous B. M. T. Patent Tooth Hand Saw.

RIP, CROSS-CUT AND MITRE COMBINED.

IT IS EASY TO FILE AND SET.



As is well known, the ordinary rip saw is useless for cross cutting, and a cross cut saw is useless for ripping, so that a carpenter is invariably compelled to carry at least two saws for the most ordinary work. The striking feature about the new saw is that it combines these two qualities, and will rip, cross-cut and mitre with equal rapidity and ease, besides giving to the wood a smoother finish than the common V tooth saw.
